Mysuru, May 10 (RK&BCT)- With tensions mounting between India and Pakistan amid continued missile strikes under 'Operation Sindoor,' security across Mysuru has been significantly heightened. Sensitive installations, including the Mysore Airport and city transit hubs such as the Railway and bus stations, are on high alert.

The Union Home Ministry has directed all States and Union Territories to step up security at vulnerable points, particularly critical infrastructure, to guard against possible retaliatory actions by Pakistan.

"While Mysuru lacks major strategic installations within city limits, we are strictly enforcing security protocols at the Mysore Airport, especially for passengers arriving and departing," said Deputy Commissioner of Police (Law and Order) M. Muthuraju, speaking to Star of Mysore this morning.

Given Mysuru's importance as a transit point connecting Karnataka with Tamil Nadu and Kerala, heightened vigilance is in place along roads and Railway lines. "We're monitoring inter-State borders closely, particularly for the movement of sensitive materials that could be used to incite local disturbances. Also, places of worship are being watched by dedicated teams, and they have been given route maps for strict surveillance," he added.

Central coordination, local readiness: Certain locations in Mysuru fall under the watch of the Central Industrial Security Force (CISF) and local Police are working in close coordination with Central Paramilitary Units and civil administration to maintain security.

Mysuru district's security measures are aligned with the State Disaster Response Force (SDRF) framework. Civil Defence personnel, Home Guards and the National Cadet Corps (NCC) have been placed on standby to respond swiftly to emergencies.

Combating misinformation: Authorities are also closely monitoring anti-national propaganda on social and digital media platforms. Coordination with Central intelligence agencies is ongoing to track and act against those spreading misinformation.

"We are ensuring timely and verified dissemination of information to prevent fear-mongering and curb the spread of rumours. Strengthening communication and public awareness is key to maintaining calm," the DCP said.

Rowdy-sheeters rounded up in night-long Police Operation

Mysuru, May 10 (RK&BCT)- In response to mounting security concerns and potential threat by anti-social elements amid a broader conflict scenario, the Mysuru City Police conducted a night-long crackdown on individuals with criminal past.

Officers from all Police Stations in city limits jointly rounded up 61 rowdy-sheeters and brought them to Hebbal Police Station early today. The Police Operation follows heightened tensions between India and Pak.

While no lethal weapons were found during raids on the homes of rowdy elements, the Police thoroughly assessed their activities, sources of income and social circles. The operation was carried out with Court permission and given the prevailing sensitive atmosphere, including dissent over the Waqf Amendment Act and the upcoming Dasara festival.

The detained individuals were made to sign written undertakings pledging not to misuse the prevailing situation to incite communal disharmony or exploit religious sentiments.

Further, the Police warned of stern legal action against anyone attempting to create unrest by circulating fake videos of violence or arson, falsely claiming they depict incidents from Mysuru city or district.

Deputy Commissioners of Police M. Muthuraju (Law and Order) and K.S. Sundar Raj (Crime and Traffic) issued the warning, stressing the importance of sharing only verified and factual information. They said the Police's social media monitoring team is actively tracking misinformation and those spreading false content will face stringent legal consequences.

VVCE 'Open Day' tomorrow

Mysuru, May 10- Vidyavardhaka College of Engineering (VVCE), Mysuru, has organised Open Day-2025 at its H. Kempegowda Indoor Sports Complex in Gokulam on May 11 at 10.30 am. The event is open to all PU students and their families.

VVCE Principal Dr. B. Sadashive Gowda said the event will feature an exhibition of projects, career guidance sessions and interaction with CET and industry experts. The primary objective is to help students explore different engineering domains, understand the kind of projects students develop at VVCE, and get guidance on career options and engineering branches.

He emphasised that many students make minor but critical errors during CET document verification and option entry, which may lead to admission in unintended colleges and branches. He added that experts will guide students during the Open Day to address this issue.

Experts attending the event include K.S. Sundar, Associate Vice-President of Infosys, Mysuru; Rahul Deshpande, Co-Founder and Director of PravegaSemi, Bengaluru and Uday Shankar, a CET official. These guests will interact with students, offering valuable insights into current industry expectations, CET counselling procedures and how to avoid common mistakes during admissions [Mob:77609-64040].

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

HEALING FROM WITHIN: Stepping into the post office last week, I felt I had travelled back in time. This place looked the same as it did three decades back. The chairs with layers of dust were gleaming at the armrest due to the constant contact with the person seated. The rustic ceiling fans were more musical now. The glue from the light blue Camel jar, tied to the grill, oozing on all sides with the applicator after having lost many bristles was still happy to do the job. The queue moved slowly, and everyone followed the discipline. There was no rush, no panic, no loud voices; yet, the work went on at a smooth pace. The place exuded calmness.

Came across an interesting forward: Vikram, a hotel owner, was sitting at the cash counter counting cash and clearing the delivery boys of their bills. This was his regular affair every day. But today, being a rather busy day, his head hurt a lot. He felt that the day was going from bad to worse. He desperately needed a medicine to cure it.

As all workers were busy, he couldn't request anyone to get it for him. In the evening, he found some time to take a short stroll to the medical shop across the road. After gulping down the medicine with some water, he sat on the bench outside the shop with his eyes closed. A little later, he felt better. Not finding the owner of the medical shop in his usual seat, he asked the young lady at the cash counter about his whereabouts. She replied, "Sir, he had a severe headache. There were too many customers. He just got free and walked over to your shop to have a cup of coffee to relieve him of his headache."

Each of us has a unique way to find healing from pain. Similarly, each one has a different route to find peace. Some travel around the world, while some find peace within the confines of home. Peace is a fallout of how grateful and content we are with what we have. Count the little blessings that come to us everyday in multiple ways and watch the smile return to your face.

Health does not always come from medicine. Most of the time, it comes from peace of mind, peace in the heart and peace of soul.

Dancer balances 468 wine glasses on head

Dinos Kkantis performed a traditional routine known as the Dance of the Glasses at an event in Aradippou, Kkantis, which involved an increasing number of trays of glasses being placed on his head while he danced.

Kkantis managed to dance with 468 glasses on his head, potentially taking the Guinness World Record for the most wine glasses balanced on the head. The current record of 319 glasses was set by fellow Cypriot Aristotelis Valaoritis in May 2023.

Video and other evidence from Kkantis' performance must now be reviewed by Guinness World Records before becoming official.

Cat leaps over 8 feet into record books

Dallas: A high-flying Texas cat earned a Guinness World Record by leaping a distance of 8 feet and 5 inches.

Oscar, a 7-year-old cat belonging Theodore Shiells of Dallas, officially took the Guinness World Records title for the longest jump by a cat.

Shiells said Oscar started out with tricks like sitting, begging and fetching, and about two years ago the feline started to show an interest in jumping tricks.

It took two years of training and more than 1,000 practice jumps for Oscar to break the record, Shiells added.

VOICE OF THE READER

Stray dogs rule the roost

Sir,

The menace of stray dogs has reached alarming levels near Trinetra Circle and Aditya Adhikari Hospital (Contour Road) in the Nanda Gokula residential area. These dogs are increasingly posing a threat to vehicle riders, walkers, and pedestrians, occasionally even launching unprovoked attacks.

Along the Hebbal-Vijayanagar route, packs of strays have created an atmosphere of fear. Their sudden barking often startles drivers, sometimes resulting in collisions with oncoming traffic. It is now a daily sight to witness food delivery personnel being chased for nearly half a kilometre.

Ironically, a majority of the residents in this area identify as animal lovers. Despite the growing public safety issues, many of them strongly oppose any intervention or action against the dogs.

As a result, the situation has turned into a peculiar standoff, where commuters and the general public are caught between aggressive strays and their staunch defenders.

I sincerely urge the authorities concerned to take prompt and effective measures to curb this canine nuisance and restore a sense of safety and peace for the residents and road users.

Centre asks States to enforce heightened security measures

Bengaluru, May 10 (KMS& BCT)- In light of escalating tensions along the India-Pakistan border following recent military confrontations, the Central Government has directed all States, including Karnataka, to implement heightened security measures to ensure national preparedness.

Acting under Article 352 of the Indian Constitution, the Union Government has issued an official directive to the Chief Secretaries, detailing the special protocols to be enforced during this period of alert.

Although Article 352 provides the Centre with powers to declare a national emergency, the current invocation is precautionary and does not interfere with State governance. The Centre seeks to ensure that national security remains under its exclusive authority during this sensitive time.

Financial controls, strategic infrastructure

As part of the enhanced measures, the Centre has placed strict controls on large financial transactions. Banks have been directed to obtain prior approval before processing any major deposits, transfers or withdrawals.

The Intelligence Department has further instructed States to enforce these restrictions rigorously, leaving no room for exceptions.

Security has been significantly tightened around key defence and infrastructural installations. Instructions have been issued to increase precautionary measures at airports, scientific research centres, satellite communication hubs, reservoirs, hydroelectric and thermal power stations, and foreign diplomatic missions.

Local district administration offices have also been placed under additional protective watch. In urban zones, added security has been enforced around software companies, petroleum and natural gas installations, pipeline junctions, malls, luxury hotels, large residential buildings, industrial units and places of worship. These areas are being closely monitored as potential soft targets.

Surveillance on high-risk individuals

Security agencies have been tasked with the surveillance of individuals known for anti-social behaviour, those previously convicted in terrorist cases and persons linked to bomb-making or explosive-related activities.

The Centre has directed States to keep a close watch on factories producing explosives and detonators. Radical groups and fringe organisations suspected of spreading fear or attempting to destabilise society are under strict scrutiny.

The Government has called for strict legal action against anyone indulging in anti-national acts such as delivering hate speeches, chanting seditious slogans or promoting terrorist ideologies via social media platforms.

Online misinformation campaigns are also under the scanner, with authorities asked to investigate the movements and locations of unfamiliar or suspicious individuals in cities and towns.

Public advisory

Citizens have been urged to remain calm but alert. They are advised to maintain emergency essentials such as a modest cash reserve, fully-fuelled vehicles, required medicines, blankets, charged mobile phones, and safe storage of critical personal documents.

These steps, the Government says, are necessary to ensure public safety and readiness in the event of a crisis. Commanding officers of all security units have been instructed to ensure that their personnel are fully briefed and prepared.

Wireless communication systems, computers and transport vehicles must be kept in working condition. Arms and ammunition should be maintained in a state of operational readiness following instructions from Central intelligence agencies.

Karnataka sleeper cells, modules under watch

Bengaluru, May 10 (KMS& BCT)- Amid fears of a war-like situation at the border, concerns have intensified over the possible activation of sleeper cells operating within the State.

Law enforcement agencies have been placed on high alert, with strict directives issued to monitor individuals and groups previously linked to terrorist activities. Authorities are particularly vigilant, as there is intelligence suggesting that these dormant networks may attempt to exploit the current geopolitical unrest.

In the past, several persons suspected of terrorist links were arrested across Karnataka, although some were later released due to a lack of evidence and under political pressure. However, the Home Department is apprehensive that certain criminal elements still lodged in prisons may try to reactivate their external networks.

The Home Department has directed both the Police and intelligence agencies to intensify surveillance and closely monitor the activities of suspected sleeper cells. It has called for proactive intelligence gathering and round-the-clock monitoring of individuals with a history of subversive activity.

District Superintendents of Police have been instructed to ramp up intelligence efforts at the local level. They are to maintain continuous observation of suspicious elements and regularly update Central and State intelligence wings with relevant inputs.

RPF takes out Flag March at City Railway Station

In the Flag March, led by RPF Inspector Dinesh Kumar, the RPF personnel donning bullet proof jacket and shield, along with dog squad and staff, took out the march in all the six platforms of the railway station and searched station area, parcel office and footover bridge (FOB).

India has launched Operation Sindoor to avenge the massacre of 26 tourists at Pahalgam in Kashmir. In a counter attack, Pakistan is also conducting several raids, but India has succeeded in facing them effectively. In this wake, the Flag March was taken out in the railway station to send a message loud and clear to the people that 'We are with you and ready to face any situation.'

RPF Sub-Inspector S.P. Harish and other personnel were present.

A China hand in Pahalgam attack?

Like every Indian, I was overcome with shock and anger after hearing about Pahalgam terror attack. As the emotional dust settled, a darker question emerged: Has Pakistan now become China's lapdog?

The style of the Pahalgam attack was notably different from earlier terror incidents. As in, it was grotesquely theatrical and seemingly designed to provoke a national crisis. It felt like something larger was at play, a Chinese hand perhaps?

Over the decades, Pakistan's military establishment has outsourced its sovereignty. First, to the United States, when Washington needed a pawn in its 'Cold War' battle with the USSR and now to China, which may want to destabilise India.

Why would China want to provoke a crisis between India and Pakistan? Simple: Distraction and delay to protect its economy.

Trump-era tariffs have cast serious doubts on China's dominance as the world's factory floor. This means India, with its massive workforce and stable democracy, has become an attractive alternative for global supply chains. This is an economic threat China cannot risk.

So, how does China buy time? By keeping India entangled in border tensions, internal unrest and cross-border terrorism.

Now they have another lapdog. If Pakistan is Beijing's pet in the West, Bangladesh is a new one in the East.

Consider the recent suggestion by a senior political voice in Dhaka that Bangladesh should ally with China to seize parts of India's Northeast if India retaliates against Pakistan. What!

Shocking, coming from a country whose very independence was secured by India, paid for with the blood of Indian soldiers?! How ungrateful...

Where does a small nation like Bangladesh find such audacity and bravado? The answer, again, likely points North — to Beijing.

China may be using our two disgruntled, jealous and fanatic neighbours to keep India militarily alert and economically distracted.

The more India spends on border management, defence procurement and retaliation, the less time and money it has to invest in what truly matters — which is building a domestic manufacturing ecosystem, developing infrastructure to leverage global manufacturing as it shifts away from China.

That said, there will be no peace in India as long as Pakistan and Bangladesh remain lapdogs.

Like it's done with mad dogs, India will either have to put them down or learn to put up with them or...

Pray they mature as democracies and become humane instead of remaining a geopolitical canine.

Amen.

A Prayer ... for our Soldiers

Since the launch of 'Operation Sindoor,' as night skies blaze with rocket fire on our TV screens and news anchors deliver breathless, panic-driven reports, one emotion should rise above the noise: Gratitude.

I am reminded of this as I recall a video of V. Lahari, a 5th standard student from the Government Primary School in Airbailu, Kundapur, Udupi district.

This student quietly and swiftly salutes the flex poster of Lance Havildar Anoop Poojary every day on her way to school. Now that is a citizen worth dying for.

Indian soldiers are risking and losing their lives so that you and your family can sleep in peace. But what do we give in return as small acts of our gratefulness?

How many of us have ever let a Jawan move ahead in a queue at a ticket counter?

How many private schools have ever given a donation-free seat to an Army widow's child?

How many of us have ever offered a smile to a cycle-pedaling Jawan?

We have taken them for granted and, in turn, have become ungrateful.

Most soldiers serve this Nation because they want to.

I have written about him before, my friend Lt. Col. Ashith Appana. I feel I have to mention him again as he is right now serving on the Kashmir border.

Ashith and I, both joined National Cadet Corps (NCC) at the same time. While I saw no reason for a macho stomp session during parades, he stomped till the earth shook and his kneecap popped out.

While I cheated during long-distance runs by hitching a ride on the vegetable vendor's bicycle, he ran like it was for his life.

Ashith did it because he wanted to be an Army man, a protector. Even if it meant that he might have to give up his life.

Even if he had to disappoint his parents, who wanted their son to be part of the 'new India' overflowing with 'disposable' income.

Even when he was warned that he would never find a wife if he joined the Army.

My friend was and is still intelligent, tall, dark and handsome. He could have easily become a top corporate man. But he chose the harder path.

Lt. Col. Ashith Appanna is now in his 40s. He has two children — a 16-year-old son and a 12-year-old daughter. While our children are worrying and praying about their board exam results, his children are worried about their father and praying for his safe return.

Ashith has served this Nation better than I ever can. He may not have much, but what he has in abundance is integrity — Unshakeable. Uncompromising. Unfathomable. The kind only a soldier can have.

I know he cannot be corrupted, cannot be negotiated with.

He will safeguard this Nation with his life. He will put his Nation before his children and wife. He is a patriot, as pure as they come.

I know many like him in our Armed Forces, and so I know I will enjoy my freedom for a long time to come.

I am grateful for Ashith and others like him every night who stand guard at the borders so I can sleep in peace and wake up in a free India.

There is an epitaph on a soldier's grave in Nagaland which says:

"When you go home, tell them of us,
For their tomorrow, we gave up our today."

I hope we remember it, like Lahari from Kundapur does every day.

Jai Hind.

Mysuru, May 10 (RK&DM)- Strongly opposing the plans for setting up a Nandini milk booth at MUDA ground abutting MysoreOne Centre in Gokulam 3rd Stage, several residents of the locality staged a demonstration this morning in protest against the moves for facilitating business and other commercial activities at the open space.

"Some people have placed a metal unit of milk booth at one portion of the ground for carrying out business. Though the ground is meant only for public use, it is a matter of concern that the plans for setting up the milk booth will pave the way for other shopping and commercial activities at the ground," they maintained and urged the authorities to remove the booth immediately. It may be mentioned here that the residents had strongly protested against MUDA's proposed Group Housing Project at the sprawling ground, a couple of years ago.

A justification to be a Vishwa Guru!

By Dr. C.D. Sreenivasa Murthy

Dr. Sreenivasa Murthy

The year was 1977. A tall, young, lean man with a backpack arrived in New Delhi from Germany. He loved Indian music, particularly Ravi Shankar's sitar. He was a musician and composer himself. He had read the book Siddhartha by Herman Hesse. He had a romanticised vision of India, and had expected to see "an Indian meditating under almost every Banyan tree, anticipated to hear the sound of sitars and the smell of incense sticks in every second street corner."

Contrary to what he had envisaged, the deafening din of the streets and the crowds of humanity on the Delhi roads shocked his senses. His first desire was to return to Germany, but he followed his instinct to stay on.

The next four months, he travelled all over India by ordinary transport like buses and third-class trains. After a few weeks of travel visiting temples of Khajuraho, the beaches of Goa and the backwaters of Kerala, he started liking the country immensely. He experienced the contradictions of the country. By the end of his stay he had fallen in love with India and felt he should come again and stay for a longer time. The person was Walter J. Lindner, and he returned to India in style as the ambassador of the Federal Republic of Germany in 2019 and stayed on in that post till 2022.

During the years of his travel and stay in India, Mr. Lindner has become an enthusiastic lover of this country, an Indophile. He recently released his book, What The West Should Learn From India, drawing from his travels in India, diplomatic experience, and deep engagement with India. In the book, he writes about the country's unique strengths and challenges and feels India is both a developed and a developing nation.

He is amazed at the number of digital transactions, even at small vegetable vendors and street food stalls, all over the country, which is not seen so much in super-industrialised nations like Germany and many European nations.

Author: Walter J. Lindner
Year: 2024
Pages: 279
Price: Rs. 799
Publisher: Juggernaut Books

He admires the spirit of dynamism, innovation, entrepreneurship and the desire to succeed among the youngsters in India. He mentions that this competitive spirit and the ambition to get out of mediocrity make Indians succeed all over the world, and Silicon Valley wouldn't be the same without Indian talent.

During his travels in India as a young man, he had noticed that spirituality is intertwined with the daily life of Indians and says that this holistic approach is lacking in the West.

He observes that the diversity in India is unparalleled. Different cultures, religions and languages coexist. Indians grow up exposed to this diversity, which gives them a broader worldview. There is a big chapter, "How India became India;the history of a subcontinent" where he discusses the history of the nation.

He quotes Shashi Tharoor saying that the British ruled India for Britain and not for Indians. When he visited the Partition Museum at Amritsar, he was appalled at the horrors of Partition in 1947, unlike Western diplomats who generally avoid speaking openly about such calamities at the dawn of Indian independence.

His chapter, "Everything is right in India, Even the Opposition; Politics for 1.5 billion people," makes a very interesting reading. He opines that there is no perfect democracy on earth, and no democracy is the same. Every country has a different history, different neighbours and different education systems. He writes that Indian democracy functions extremely well given its 1.4 billion people, several major religions and 28 States.

He believes that Indian democracy is working well and even the Opposition is doing its duty superbly, and declares that India doesn't need lessons on democracy from the West, though it has its shortcomings, like in any other democracy.

Lindner discusses the economic influence of the Indian diaspora and wonders why many of the top CEOs of several global companies in the USA and Germany are Indians. They are excellently educated in top Indian Universities, which have the highest competition and toughest admission hurdles, and higher education takes place in English. He says, 'If you come from a country with countless religions, ethnicities, languages and mentalities, you have an understanding of cultural and linguistic diversity — a huge advantage for management roles in multinational companies.'

The former Ambassador is highly appreciative of the independent stance of Indian foreign policy. The chapter, 'Cautiously on the World Stage: India in International Politics' discusses extensively about Indian foreign policy, and how India balances its relationships with the USA, China, Russia, and Europe without aligning itself to any specific military bloc. This sophisticated diplomacy makes it a member of G20, BRICS, QUAD and an invitee to G7, and India is the only country globally to maintain such a balanced position.

But one thing, above all, that India has taught me is humility... I am convinced India will play a significant role in the future. Will it be an Indian century ? That is debatable. Many believe so and naturally count India among the determining countries of a future multi-polar world order. For example, as a PENTARCHY of five powers that will determine the fate of the world in the future: the US, Russia, China, the EU and India.

Generally, the European press and political commentators are sceptical of India, often sarcastic and still have a colonial mindset. But Walter Lindner's book offers a unique perspective on India's growing global importance and the lessons the West can glean from our nation. It speaks of India's fault lines and its strengths. But it is highly appreciative of Indian history, technological prowess, its soft power of music and culture, and a highly sophisticated foreign policy. The book brings a seasoned diplomat's eye combined with a genuine appreciation for the complexities of Indian society.

Overall, What The West Should Learn from India is an insightful and thought-provoking book that encourages Western readers to reconsider their perceptions of India and the Global South. It's a call for mutual respect, understanding and learning in an increasingly multi-polar world in which India is destined to play a significant role — a Vishwa Guru!

Operation Abhyas at Palace this evening

Rehearsal simulates wartime scenarios - bomb attack, rescue, crisis management

Deputy Commissioner of Police (DCP) M. Muthuraju briefing the Commandos during 'Operation Abhyas' rehearsal at Mysore Palace last evening as Addl. Deputy Commissioner Dr. P. Shivaraju and others look on.

Mysuru, May 10 (MK&BCT)- A civil defence Mock Drill 'Operation Abhyas' will be conducted today (May 10) at Mysore Palace premises, with a preparatory exercise held last evening. A similar drill is scheduled for tomorrow (May 11) at Krishna Raja Sagar (KRS) Dam in Mandya district.

In light of the tense situation between India and Pakistan, the Union Home Ministry has issued directives to conduct such preparedness exercises. As per the directive, Mysuru Additional Deputy Commissioner Dr. P. Shivaraju is overseeing the drill.

Multiple departments participated in the exercise, including the Police, Fire and Emergency Services, Health Department, Home Guards, Mysuru City Corporation and Mysore Airport security personnel.

The simulated emergency scenario began with reports of suspicious helicopters flying over the Mysore Palace, followed by alerts of bombs planted within the premises. Once the emergency message was received from Mysore Airport at Mandakalli, bomb disposal squads, canine units, firefighters, Police and medical teams were swiftly deployed for a coordinated rescue operation.

Checks beyond Palace

Security efforts were not confined to Palace alone. Teams extended their inspections to major transport hubs and public spaces — including bus and railway stations, airport, markets, malls and key tourist destinations — where bomb squads and sniffer dogs conducted intensive searches.

The drill also simulated wartime conditions, focusing on evacuating civilians to safer zones and implementing civil defence protocols. Before the exercise, a strategy meeting was held at the Mysore Palace Board conference hall to outline departmental responsibilities and response procedures during the mock emergency.

The drill included a live simulation of rescue operations activated by emergency sirens. Officials practised emergency response techniques such as heightened security screening, on-the-spot medical aid, evacuation drills and search-and-rescue operations under simulated blackout conditions — a tactic used to obscure locations during crises.

Temporary medical tents were set up to treat injured civilians, while ambulances remained on standby. Teams also rehearsed extinguishing fires, clearing debris from collapsed structures and rescuing those trapped underneath.

District Health Officer Dr. P.C. Kumaraswamy, DCPs M. Muthuraju and Sundar Raj, ACP Sneharaj, Chamundi Commandos, Panther Commandos, City Armed Reserve Police, Fire and Emergency Service officers, medical teams and MCC staff.

Bhagini Sangeethotsava 2025 concludes

T.N.S. Krishna presenting a vocal concert at BSS Vidyodaya in Krishnamurthypuram on Apr. 29. He is accompanied by H.N. Bhaskar on violin, Sumesh Narayanan on mridanga and Bharadwaj Sathavalli on morching. Picture right shows Sangeetha Kalanidhi T.N. Seshagopalan (extreme right), who was felicitated on the occasion, with Sri Vidyashreesha Tirtha Swamiji of Vyasaraja Mutt, Sangeethotsava President K.S. Gururaj, BSS Vidyodaya Working President B. Srinivas and Hon. Secretary R. Vasudev Bhat.

On the last day of the music series of Bhagini Sangeethotsava, well-known vocalist T.N.S. Krishna gave a vocal concert at BSS Vidyodaya in Krishnamurthypuram on Apr. 29. He was accompanied by veteran violinist H.N. Bhaskar on violin, Sumesh Narayanan from Chennai on mridanga and Bharadwaj Sathavalli on morching.

Sri Vidyashreesha Tirtha Swamiji of Vyasaraja Mutt graced the occasion with a speech of blessings and father of T.N.S. Krishna, Sangeetha Kalanidhi T.N. Seshagopalan was also present.

The concert commenced with a shloka on Chamundeshwari followed by Muthiah Bhagavatar's varna 'Sri RAja Matangi' set to Adi tala. Krishna's presentation of the varna in the challenging second speed was impressive.

'HerambhAya namaste' by Dikshitar, a less heard composition was a welcome surprise.

Kamavardhini was engaging with a detailed alapana, Sri Tyagaraja's kriti 'Shiva shiva shiva enarAda' and a neraval at 'Agamamula' and well-knit Swaras with the percussionists enhancing the rhythmic complexity.

Another shloka on Goddess Meenakshi in Anandabhairavi seamlessly transitioned into Sri Shyama Shastri's 'MarivEre dikkevaramma.' After a quick filler 'MarugElarA O RAghava' by Sri Tyagaraja in Jayantasri, Krishna moved onto the main raga of the evening — enchanting Mohana.

The raga was extensively developed slowly, concentrating on the beauty aspects like lightning brigas which mirrored his father's singing and catchy sancharas, showcasing Krishna's command over the raga's intricacies.

Mysore Vasudevacharya's 'Ra Ra RAjeevalOchana RAma' brought happy smiles on faces of the audience. The highly intellectual Swaras were made more colourful with the ragamalika swaras in Nata, Gaula, Arabhi, Varali, Bahudari, Darbaar, Bhauli, Kadanakutuhala, Revati, Suruti — all in a single Avarta — exactly as Seshagopalan would do.

The synergy between Krishna and his accompanists was palpable. Bhaskar's violin responses were both supportive and explorative, echoing Krishna's improvisations with finesse. Sumesh and Bharadwaj provided a rhythmic foundation that was both robust and responsive, enhancing the concert's dynamism.

Krishna is a replica of his father — both in looks and in the style of singing. This concert exemplified T.N.S. Krishna's ability to honour the rich traditions of Karnatak Music while infusing it with his unique interpretations. His meticulous approach to raga development, combined with thoughtful repertoire choices and collaborative synergy, made for an evening that was intellectually stimulating.

City Bharatanatyam dancer performs in Kashmir

Mysuru, May 10- Adi Guru Shankaracharya Jayanti was celebrated in a grand manner at Shankaracharya Hill, Srinagar, Kashmir, on May 2.

This is the Hill where Adi Guru had meditated. Rudrabhisheka was performed at 4 am by team 'One India Strong India' from Mysuru and Bengaluru.

Volunteers also did Mrutyunjay Japa for longevity of soldiers in the wake of the present tense situation in borders. Volunteers prayed for getting back Pakistan occupied Kashmir (PoK) and Sharada Peeth.
